Gleichen's First Depot Burned to the Ground

With the wind blowing a gale Monday morning one of Gleichen's most ancient and historic buildings was burned to the ground.

The building was erected in the 1882 by the C. P. R. and was Gleichen's first station, and was then located opposite where the Gleichen Hotel now stands. Here the Rev. Canon Stocken held the first religious services held in Gleichen and for a number of years an excellent public library was kept in the station. In fact for sometime it was Gleichen's only public meeting place, and all Gleichen lacked in those early days was enterprising citizens to make of it the Calgary of today, for then this was the divisional point, the round-house was here and the C. P. R. officials were keen to make this their big centre.

About eight years ago the new depot was erected and the old one moved across the tracks, southeast of the new station, and used as a residence for the section foreman Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Nicholson and family had been occupying it to some time past. Mrs. Nicholson travelled and saw smoke Monday morning and searched for fire several times in vain. Miss Larkin passing in her car saw the fire burning on the east side of the building and rushed into to tell Mrs. Nicholson, then went on to send in the alarm. Soon the brigade turned out, but only managed to save a few articles on the first floor, but were useful in preventing it from spreading as the strong wind scattered cinders far over the town.

The origin of the fire will always remain a mystery as it broke out on the east side and the chimneys were on the north and south ends.

Mr. Nicholson and family lost practically everything they owned as they had no insurance, but kind friends at once offered assistance.

Wants National Anthem

One of Gleichen's most popular young ladies, who has many friends and relatives at the front, requests The Call to state that she has visited many picture shows this year in various Alberta towns and cities and it pained her to find that Gleichen was the only town where the performance was not concluded by at least the pianist playing "God Save the King", and she is of the opinion that it can hardly be considered an oversight as "Home, Sweet Home" was substituted for the National Anthem. The young lady believes that in these war days, when our brave soldiers are giving their life's blood that we may have liberty, the least we should do is to stop for a moment after each entertainment to utter a prayer for them. No doubt the manager of the Opera House will readily comply with the lady's intimation for the future.

Sometime ago Seaman Leslie Brereton wrote he hoped soon to come home for a holiday and then he wired from Halifax to send him some money to get home, which was promptly wired. He was expected to arrive last Thursday but failing, on Saturday his father wired to ascertain the cause of the delay. Monday a letter was received from him stating his vacation had been cancelled and he was sailing for South Africa much to his disappointment, which is keenly shared by his relatives and many Gleichen friends.

Pte. W. H. McKie Killed in Action

Pte. Walter Herbert McKie, who made the supreme sacrifice on Aug. 11th, on the battlefield in France, for his country, was 29 years of age, being born at Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, where he was educated, and before coming to Gleichen was employed in the office of the Robb Engineering Co. at Amherst, N.S.

He came to Gleichen about ten years ago and filled the position of bookkeeper for the Gleichen Trading Co., Ltd., and also assisted in the local post office for a time before commencing business for himself as a real estate and insurance broker. Later he started a business as dealer in automobiles and repair work and was laying a splendid foundation for a good business when the war broke out and after careful consideration he closed up all his business and as a volunteer enlisted in the spring of 1915.

After spending some months in training at Sarny camp, he crossed overseas and went to the front in November of that year, being along with his friend Gordon McCaig, the first chosen in a draft from England, and with whom he remained continuously except for the brief periods of rest allowed the soldiers in France, which, had he lived another three months, would have made full three years in steady action in France. He was through all the great battles with the Canadians and stood the terrible ordeals they passed through exceptionally well, according to information received from his comrades, which is the more surprising as when here he did not appear physically one who was able to stand great strains. Indeed many of his friends were surprised when he was accepted, as at that time physical examinations were severe. "Herb" was not only a successful young Gleichen business man, but was popular with all classes, and took a great interest in all sports, especially baseball and hockey, being one of the fairest referees that ever took part in matches on the local rink.

His mother and father are both residents of Gleichen, as is his brother, W. R. McKie, the well-known Ford automobile dealer. Besides these there survive him three sisters, namely, Miss Hattie S. McKie, of Edmonton; Mrs. H. H. Horne, of Charlottetown, P.E.I., and Mrs. R. S. Trowsdale, of Calgary.

He was very thoughtful and kind to his parents and with the exception of one occasion, his mother received cheerful letters from him every two weeks during his absence from home of three years. The last she received on Saturday, Sept. 24th, and she went happy to rest that night believing her boy was still all right and thankful he escaped so long without injury, but on Sunday she received the message giving her the brief information that he had been killed in ac-

Queenstown Third Annual Soldiers Fund

The Farmers Union of Queenstown announce their third annual box social and dance to provide Christmas funds for the boys at the front, who enlisted from that district, will be held on Friday evening, September 27th, in the new Farmers Union Hall at Milo. A five-piece orchestra has been engaged for the occasion and every effort will be made to see that each and everyone has a good time. The price of admission will be the usual amount, but the ladies are expected to bring baskets that will be so tempting the auctioneer will easily sell them at prices that will ensure the forty boys overseas a substantial sum to cheer themselves up with next Christmas. It is also important that all who have the addresses of any of their soldier friends bring them along that night. Any person desiring to contribute to this fund may send their donations to M. Munro, Box 50, Milo. A special request is made to the business men of Gleichen and surrounding towns to be present on this occasion.

tion. The deepest sympathy is expressed throughout our district for the grief-stricken parents and bereaved family, who, while mourning the loss of a good son and brother, have every reason to be proud of a brave soldier-boy who gave his life for his home and country.

Rev. Mr. Mathewson of Namo on Sunday evening last conducted the memorial service in the Amalgamated church, which was largely attended and the church beautifully adorned with flowers.

First Load of 1918 Wheat Arrives

T. A. Eisenbise from across the river brought in the first load of wheat of the 1918 crop to the Alberta Pacific elevator last Thursday, September 5th, which graded No. 1 Northern and is of the very finest quality. Having disposed of the first load starting up the wheat game in Gleichen, Mr. Eisenbise stepped over to Ramsay's Busy Store and was presented with a pair of choice gloves, this being Mr. Ramsay's standing offer to the farmer bringing in the first load of wheat.

Council Busy With Electric Light Repairs

The Town Council held two meetings at which the repairs necessary at the power house to the electric light plant and water works were the principal subjects discussed.

The public works committee made a report of a recent inspection of the plants, recommending numerous repairs and improvements required for the fall and winter, which the Council is now attending to. The many details would not make very interesting reading, although all will be glad to know the councillors are giving them all their most careful attention.

There was little other business transacted at these meetings, but the mayor and treasurer were authorized to borrow $1,500 from the bank to tide them over until taxes could be collected.

An application made by Mr. Lett for Mr. Broderick was granted to disconnect the electric wires in the basement and over the Royal Bank from Mr. Strack's meter and put them on a new meter.

A number of accounts were referred to the finance committee to check over and if correct to authorize payment.

PLANS FOR DEMOBILIZING ARMY WHEN THE DAY OF PEACE ARRIVES

SCHEME FOR RETURNING SOLDIERS TO CIVIL LIFE

Military Authorities In Great Britain Are Already Working On Far-reaching Plans Which Will Facilitate Movement At the Dispersal Depots

A London correspondent of the Associated Press, describing the measures which are being taken in Great Britain to solve the problem of demobilization, writes as follows: Although the end of the war may be far distant, plans for demobilization of the British army, when the proper time arrives, are well under way. The military authorities, acting in conjunction with the ministry of labor, are perfecting the scheme by which the soldiers will be returned to civil life with the utmost celerity, and at a camp not far from London there has already been a rehearsal of the methods to be adopted for dispersing the men.

"Big as was the job to get men into the army," said an officer engaged in the work, "it will be a bigger job to get them out of it. But the country may be sure that everything will be done to enable the soldiers to reach their homes and get employment with the minimum of friction."

The scheme is far-reaching. The authorities have had to consider not only the situation at home, but also how the plan will fit in with the convenience of France, Italy and the overseas Dominions, and with transport facilities from Salonica, Mesopotamia, Palestine, and from other parts of the world. How long it will take to demobilize the millions of troops is a question to which even those occupied in the task are not prepared to give a definite reply.

Eighteen dispersal depots are to be established in England, Scotland and Wales. Every step has been worked out in detail. Before the men in France are ordered home they will be assembled in the order of the districts from which they came, so that all may be sent in a body direct to the locality from which they joined the army. Each man will take with him his entire kit, including his arms and personal equipment, steel helmet and box respirator. Previously he will have been deprived of his ammunition.

On reaching the dispersal station the men will hand over their equipment. Everything must be given up except the uniform, which the soldier is wearing, and his great coat, although the coat must be returned after the month's furlough to which each man will retain his uniform.

The soldiers will pass through several huts before he is sent on furlough. In one he will be given a protection certificate, containing all particulars regarding his regiment, length of service and destination. In another he will be given an advance on the pay still due him, and post-office money orders in three equal instalments for the remainder.

On application the soldier will be presented with an "out-of-work" insurance policy valid for a year. This will entitle him to receive a fixed sum for a definite period from the post office, if unemployed.

Finally, the men will be grouped in different huts, according to the locality to which they are to be sent. Railroad tickets already will have been made out. Then will come entrainment and the start for home.

Our Coal Resources

Plans for Utilizing the Lignites of Western Canada

A plan for the utilization of western lignites that is likely to have far-reaching results, has been formulated by the Canadian council for scientific and industrial research. The provinces of Manitoba and Saskatchewan import annually from Pennsylvania about 500,000 tons of anthracite for domestic fuel. There are in these provinces, it is estimated, about 57,000,000 tons of lignites of a poor grade, and consequently disqualified from serving as domestic fuel. It has been demonstrated, however, that coal can be carbonized, and briquetted, and that the product thus treated is an equivalent of anthracite.

As a result of these investigations, conducted by the lignite commission, the council recommended that the government establish a plant in southern Saskatchewan to turn out 30,000 tons of this fuel yearly, the estimated cost of which would not, probably, exceed $7 per ton at the plant. The three governments concerned are about to sign the proposed agreement, the Dominion government already having voted its share of the total cost of the plant. The governments expect to appoint a commission to operate the plant at an early date.

B. C.'s Unused Grazing Areas

The Vancouver World reports that in British Columbia immense grazing areas are going to waste every year simply through the absence of any system. In Ashcroft district alone it is stated that 20,000 cattle could be maintained on land now idle.

H. S. Cleasby, representing the British Columbia Stock Raisers' Association; J. H. Wilson, representative of the British Columbia Wool Growers' Association; G. R. Naden, Deputy Minister of Lands; W. T. McDonald, Live Stock Commissioner, and M. A. Granger, Chief Forester, are now engaged on an investigation of the measures necessary to the utilization of this at present unused wealth.

Immensely Impressed By the Spirit of Britain

World Will Be Safe for Peace as Long as America and Great Britain Stand on Guard

Otto H. Kahn, the New York banker, who, though a native of Germany, has always been sound on the question of the war, recently returned from a trip to the other side and gave a statement to the New York Times, in the course of which he said:

"I was immensely impressed by the spirit of Great Britain and the magnitude and efficiency in all directions of her war effort, which has not, perhaps, been generally appreciated as yet at its full value."

"As a business man, I was naturally able to realize best their organization for the business side of war. They have drafted their best business brains everywhere into the service of the government. Their supply, transportation, manufacturing and salvage systems, for instance, are marvels of business organization."

"Andrew Weir, director general of supplies, and among other things, in charge of the army salvage system, was good enough to show and explain to me his methods of operation. He told me that in the space of three years he will have saved to the nation through salvage, or, rather, in effect created for the nation, $500,000,000 out of things which formerly went into the scrap heap."

"The desire of Great Britain to do everything possible for our boys over there and to make of the present comradeship in arms a lasting, deep and cordial friendship between the two nations is strikingly manifest all throughout the land, from the highest to the lowest. I believe the importance of meeting them in the same spirit, sincerely, wholeheartedly, and without reservation, cannot be overestimated."

"Whatever be the world will be safe for peace, humanity and liberty as long as America and Great Britain, understanding and trusting one another, stand on guard. The world will not be safe otherwise for any length of time. If she should be given the opportunity once more, Germany, by subtle and open means may be expected to try again to sow the seeds of dissension between America and England after the war, as she did for many years before the war."

A Case of Mistaken Identity

Lone Fisherman Caused Much Excitement on N. J. Coast

Albert Carlson, a lobster fisherman, was seated in his motor boat about two miles off Monmouth Beach, N.J., the other afternoon with his pots piled up around him so that the outfit looked somewhat like a submarine lying on the surface.

Down the coast well within the three mile limit, came a coastwise steamer ploughing along at about twelve knots an hour. Suddenly, much to Carlson's surprise, a shot was fired from the steamer and a shell dropped a few yards away from his craft. Two other shots immediately followed, one of which swept Carlson's piled up pots away, but left both him and his motor craft unharmed.

The fisherman turned and streaked for the shore as fast as his engine could chug. It was an extremely hazy afternoon and he figured that by the time the third shot had arrived and his pots carried away he was perhaps no longer visible to the steamer. At any rate he ceased firing and was observed by persons along the beach to turn round and head in the general direction of New York.

Then much excitement! Word spread along the nearby coast that there was a German U-boat off shore, and from miles around automobiles raced in with curious parties hoping to see a possible naval engagement.

What they saw was a destroyer come plunging down the coast and search the waters. Overhead flocked hydro-airplanes which had been despatched from Camp Alfred Vail at Little Silver upon getting a report of an enemy submarine. On shore a badly scared lobster fisherman was protesting that it would never be safe for him to go near his pots again.—Boston Globe.

New Metal for Cutlery

A metal suitable for the very finest forms of cutlery has been developed from combining iron, chromium and cobalt, according to an announcement made by Prof. W. L. Goodwin, of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont. F. S. Johnson, United States Consul, at Kingston, reports that the new metal is easy to work and is shortly to be put on the market in commercial quantities.

The Day

On Some Glorious Day the Enemy Will Cry "Kamaradi!"

It will come some day — do you realize it? On some one glorious day the enemy will cry "Kamaradi!" in good earnest, and there will be peace.

Picture that day. The crowds in the streets are going about their business, the Red Cross rooms are humming with work, the thousand war activities are grinding at full speed, every mother and father is facing the morning with a heart braced for loss, every loyal citizen is at his post of service, and suddenly—the news!

The crowded avenues turn white; all up and down their length they have blossomed white with the open newspapers that have magically sprung into everyone's outstretched hands. Everybody in the long, stopped stream of humanity holds a newspaper or reads his neighbor's; everybody knows everybody, shares with everybody; strange hands clasp, strange eyes, meeting, overflow; there is just one first thought, not triumph, not democracy, but—those boys, those boys—they can come home!

And the second thought will be, "We've done it! We've put it through!"

That day is not a vision; it is coming as surely as tomorrow. Then will you have it tomorrow? Or will you put it off for four more bleeding years? It is in your hands. Every effort, every dollar, you give to service, shortens the waiting. If all gave all they could, the day could not hold back another hour. When you buy the thing you most want you are not conscious of sacrifice in paying the sum demanded. Fix your eyes on the day—the day when the avenues will suddenly blossom white with the news of peace—and you will want that with so burning an urgency that you will come running with its price.—By Juliet Wilbur Tompkins.

Education and Morals

Education Powerless to Prevent Germany from Committing the Greatest Apostasy of History

In the strict and technical sense of the word the Germans are the most highly educated people in the world. Germany bristles with universities just as it bristles with forts. The graduates fill the land. Schools and technical institutes abound. Her scientists and scholars were renowned the world over. The war found thousands of chemists and mechanicians ready to invent every mechanical device imaginable. Thousands of her young men had been trained to business, commerce and industry.

Education and omniscience were the boast of Germany, culture and efficiency her pride. And all were powerless to prevent Germany from committing the great apostasy of history, the great betrayal of the ages, and making her forever the Judas among nations, the Nero among empires, the Machiavelli among states. Apparently all her education has had no power whatever to direct her ideals towards the things of the spirit, had no power to illumine her conscience in the least, had no power to awaken in her any moral sense. The most highly educated men in Germany have lauded her selfish intentions, justified all her crimes, and been her apologists to the other nations.

Educated Germany has equaled ignorant Turkey in every regard during this war. Indeed, there is some reason to believe that the initiative of everything that Turkey has done came from Germany. But all this has exploded forever the old theory that education without religion determines conduct. It seems, if we can judge from Germany, that she puts more powerful tools into the hands of evil men. There is a great lesson for all of us here.—From the Christian Work.

The Hun and the Sea

Seamen Cannot Be Bribed to Trade With the Germans

There are some things honest men will not stand; and the German at sea is one of them. Not for a generation, and very likely more than one, will the German put to sea without some peril to himself. When he struck at the brotherhood of the sea he struck at a power as wide as the sea, as strong, as pitiless. Seamen have long memories, and minds unfaded by money, for money does not come their way. They cannot be bribed to trade with the German. Were it no more than a matter of self-defence, the seamen would still be constrained to teach the German his lesson. There are people who argue that the prospect of receiving a part of their dues after the war encourages the poor misguided Germans to go on fighting. But whether they go on or not, they cannot undo the past. They will reap as they have sown.—London Morning Post.

A Question of Right

"Every man has a right to his own opinion," said the argumentative man.

"That's what I say," exclaimed Senator Sorghum, in a tone of slight irritation. "What is the sense of your putting up a discussion in an effort to take my opinion away from me and substitute yours?"—Washington Star.

Can All You Can

It would be a thousand pities to produce vegetables or fruit in response to the war garden appeal and then have more on hand than could be used so that quantities would perish. All surplus vegetables over immediate requirements should be canned, dried, and stored away, for winter will follow a season of plenty and all the world will be short of food.

Follow the Barrage!

Exciting Incidents in the Capture of the Enemy Third Line Trench

Some hours before, under cover of the darkness, the sub had led his men to their allotted position, where they now lay awaiting the signal to commence their game of "Follow the Barrage."

He moves quietly from man to man whispering, "Fifteen minutes to go." The quietly spoken replies, "Good, sir." "We're ready, sir," prove how welcome his message is. It heralds action; waiting is irksome.

Crashing, deafening, terrible comes the signal. Our barrage has opened and the shells are bursting with vivid splashes on the German first line 80 yards in front. Within 30 seconds dozens of star shells brilliantly illumine the sky, and the venomous crack and rattle of rifles and machine guns add to the pandemonium. It is the Huns reply—they are alert. Our men are already moving in an extended line as on parade following the barrage. There is no apparent hurry. Above the continuous deafening crash, crack and rattle no human voice can be heard, and the men loom large, like giant silhouettes, amid the glare. Here and there one sinks to ground and—stays there.

Reaching the Huns' barbed wire, the boys worm their way through the gaps and then sink on one knee, waiting. The critical moment is near when the barrage will lift and creep on towards the German second line.

As one man, the lads leap forward with a yell and are in the trench before the Huns realize it. Opposition is quickly swept aside with bayonet and rifle butt. Our lads are irresistible.

One man takes his place as sentry at each dug-out entrance where the Huns have "gone to earth." The remainder "scramble" quickly out of the trench, and again extending in line, follow the barrage, pounding the German second line.

Everywhere hangs a heavy fog of smoke, and away behind a roar can be heard like the echo of the barrage in front. The Hun has opened his barrage on our first line to cut off our reinforcements. No matter—he is too late. Already our second wave is reinforcing the first as they move up to within 30 yards of the German second line.

As our barrage lifts forward and creeps towards the German third line, our lads dash forward and capture the trench, meeting strong opposition from two or three machine gun positions. For the first time they throw bombs, which quickly smash a way for the bayonets.

Keener than ever the men quickly form up and, following the barrage, take the German third line with little opposition, and the final objective is gained.

The crisis over, Nature reasserts herself. The men are surprised to find it is daylight, and, for the first time, realize they are tired and thirsty. Clothes and puttees are torn, steel hats lost, a few men are slightly wounded, yet, withal, they are exuberantly happy, for they have "followed the barrage" to victory.

Czecho-Slovak Cause

Bohemians and Their Kinsmen on Side of Allies

Four nations have recognized the Czecho-Slovak cause: Italy at the Rome congress; France by "proclaiming the rights of the (your) nation to independence"; Britain, June 5, by the Balfour statement confirming the recognition "granted by France and Italy," and recognizing the new national council; the United States in the Lansing note of June 2, emphasizing the stand that "all branches of the Slav race should be completely freed from German and Austrian rule."

Known to us as Bohemians, the Czechs are the best educated, and in many ways the most progressive element in the Austro-Hungarian empire; the Slovaks, a closely kindred race whom "divide-and-conquer" policies have kept apart from their brothers in Galicia.

The Czecho-Slovak armies are mainly formed of Austro-Hungarian troops who have turned this war into a revolution, with freedom as its goal, by espousing the other side. More than 18,000 are fighting Austria in Italy; 300 of these, taken prisoners, were recently hanged as deserters. Others are in Macedonia with the Serbs; still others, formerly in Roumania, are a trained nucleus of the Czecho-Slovak army in France with which the American contingent are associated.

Since the Czecho-Slovak prisoners in Russia, many thousands have died fighting for the entente. Possibly 100,000 are still in arms. The most famous body are the 60,000 men, whom, under the agreement of the Bolsheviks, their national council, started across Siberia to get to France by way of the Pacific, but who found nearer work in ending the anarchy about them. In all the world today no group of men of such modest size is so placed as to promise such momentous service for humanity and civilization.

Manitoba Cattle Bring Big Prices

A dispersal sale of Aberdeen Angus cattle from the farm of J. D. Macgregor, of Brandon, Manitoba, was the greatest success of any sale of this sort in the history of the Canadian west. Buyers were present from several states and provinces, and they were so keen to secure some of these famous animals that rather than disappoint them more animals were sold than it was originally intended to dispose of. One hundred and thirty-five animals were sold for a total of $91,500. It was truly a dispersal sale, for animals will go to as far distant points as Alberta and Kentucky. The first 60 animals sold for an average of more than $800.

Fate of "U" Boat Sealed

Italian Naval Officer Says Day of Suppression Is Approaching

A high officer of the Italian navy, interviewed by the Rome correspondent of the Central News, on the subject of the destruction of enemy submarines, said:

"In this war our enemies have deliberately elected to play the part of wild beasts, and they set out to dominate the world by brute force. This is especially true in regard to their submarine war methods. As a result the world had to arm itself against these wild beasts of the sea, and a pitiless chase was begun in order to destroy them."

"Ever since the world began human hunts against beasts have invariably ended in the suppression of the plague, and in this hunt the destruction of the beasts will be complete before the war ends. The Austrian beast has already been eliminated—Austrian submarines are no longer to be met with. The German beast is still active, but it has begun to lose its teeth, and its fate is sealed."

"It has been decided not to publish the statistical results of the campaign of destruction against submarines. Personally I doubt if that is the best method. The hiding of these figures has enabled the rulers of Germany to deceive their people and make them believe that the submarines were achieving their aim. The day when the entente decide to publish the figures of the number of submarines destroyed, the whole world, and especially Germany, will be astounded."

"The mine blockade established by the British in the North Sea has given brilliant results and similar blockades in other waters have also been most successful. Very soon, you may believe me, the German submarine beast will be completely suppressed."

Greatly Increased Wool Production

Considerable Increase Over Last Year's Production

Although it is still too early to determine what the total production of wool in Western Canada this season will amount to, it is evident that there will be a considerable increase over last year's production, and in all probability greater than one of fifty per cent, which was originally forecasted. Grading is now well under way at all the receiving points. Three weeks before the close of the grading at Regina, Saskatchewan, farmers of this province had shipped nearly seventy-five per cent. More wool than was received at this station during the whole of last year. A considerable quantity of wool is also expected during the last two weeks.

At Calgary, Alberta, about two weeks before the close of the grading season, about fifty per cent. more wool had been received than during the whole of 1917. The total increase there for the year over last year's production bids fair to run around seventy-five per cent. Edmonton, Alberta, too, will have considerably heavier shipments of wool this year. The same remark applies to Lacombe and other small receiving stations in Alberta. Lethbridge, Alberta, which is the headquarters of the Southern Alberta Wool Growers' Association, whose members produce the largest quantity of wool in Western Canada will ship about 1,600,000 pounds of wool, which is about fifty per cent. greater than the total shipments of last year.

The farmers of Manitoba have also considerably increased their wool output, estimates showing an increase of between twenty-five and fifty per cent.

On the whole, very satisfactory progress has been made in the sheep industry since last season. Western Canada is destined to be a great sheep country, and continual progress may be looked for during the next few years, as sheep are becoming more and more popular with the farmers, and the country is capable of supporting many times the number of sheep already here. The rate of progress is only limited by the ability of farmers to obtain sheep.

High Tribute to Brave Men

Act of Superb Courage Saved the Whole Allied Cause

Canada combed her offices, her factories, her farms, for men who had never thought to fight. They had to be taught the rudiments of drill, how to load a rifle, what army discipline is for. Yet in April, 1915, only six months after their arrival in England, they plugged the gap at Ypres for four days after the first poison gas attack and saved the channel ports. Military authorities have repeatedly said that by this act of superb courage they saved as well the whole allied cause. They have further said that it is very doubtful whether any but "raw troops" would have stood firm under such impossible conditions. They were no more than a handful of country boys—a mere screen of riflemen. They could have been wiped out any time in an hour by the German masses that pressed upon them. By all the rules of the game, they ought to have fallen back. But—as one German officer put it—these "glorious damn fools" did not know that they were beaten.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The Worst Still to Come

The power of this country has scarcely begun to move. It is thus far like a great rock that is being loosened at the top of a mountain. Our munitions factories, shipyards, training camps are loosening and starting the power of this land. Wait till it gets really started; wait till the rock comes crashing down at full speed from the mountain top. Then Prussia will know something about the nation whose men, taken prisoner, were insolently exhibited in the glass cage at Cologne.—The Washington Times.

Captured a German Plane

Australian Airmen Drove a Bosche Two-seater to an Allied Airfield

A German two-seater aeroplane which had taken part in low flying patrols during the attack on the French and had lost its way, was discovered above the Australian area by our Australian reconnaissance machine coming home from the German lines.

The Australians belonged to the squadron which first met Richtofen's circus and Richtofen's last flight and saved Richtofen's machine and buried Richtofen's body. The German machine yesterday tried to escape, but the Australian headed him off, and shepherded him towards his own aerodrome like a lost sheep.

The German did not apparently relish a duel, and did not fire a shot. The Australian aeroplane steadily drove the German down, keeping about 300 feet behind his tail, with gun ready to fire in case of emergency.

The Australian observer frequently shouted to the pilot: "Fire a burst to make sure." The pilot replied: "No, so long as he behaves properly and goes home to our grounds I will not fire." The German, who subsequently admitted he did not know where he was, made no attempt to fight, and landed in the Australian aerodrome in a considerable state of panic, believing our machine would open fire each moment.

His machine was captured intact for the Australian war museum.

Hunting Submarines by Air

How the Crew of the U-boat Preferred Death to Being Captured

A sea sport which has arisen out of the war—hunting German submarines by airship—is described in the London Times. The writer's story concludes with telling how the crew of the U-boat apparently preferred death to being captured.

One of the crew of an airship spotted a submarine lying on the bed of the ocean, in fairly shallow water.

"The wireless parked," reads the account in the Times, "and soon away on the horizon there appeared a little destroyer, followed far astern by four squat trawlers, all racing toward the spot above which the airship cruised around."

"The destroyer came up first, of course, and it was not long before, by wireless instructions, her guns were trained in readiness to greet the unsuspecting U-boat should it bob to the surface. It seemed ages to the impatient crew before the trawlers arrived, but things moved rapidly once they were at the scene of action, for they knew their job of old."

"Working in pairs they approached their victim from opposite directions, steaming toward each other. Between each pair, a strong sweep was stretched and allowed to hang in a huge loop that might traverse the sea bed. The vessels, men and crossed each other's tracks, immediately aware of the doomed craft. The sweeps of either pair engaged the U-boat fore and aft simultaneously and held her in a gigantic circle."

"Thus far the German boat had shown no signs of alarm, although those within her must have heard the churning of the trawlers' screws. Now she suddenly seemed to awake to the menace that threatened her."

The article goes on to describe the fate of the submarine. "She wriggled and squirmed about in a frantic endeavor to escape, but it was useless. Not a loophole was there to be found, and at length, realizing the hopelessness of her plight, she ceased to struggle. This fact was duly witnessed by those on board. The airship to the destroyer below. Trapped securely, the enemy vessel could still rise to the surface did she so desire, and, to give her an opportunity to do so, the British craft now waited for several minutes. She preferred to lie still; and so, at a flagged signal from the destroyer, the starboard gun, mounted on a high tripod, opened fire, and the two trawlers two firing keys were pressed."

"Followed then the uprising of a geyser of water, and when—the troubled ocean became calm, of the submarine there was no trace other than an extensive path of oil floating upon the surface of the sea."

Experts

Crawford—We're turning out tanks and expect to do great execution with them over there.

Cabshaw—We certainly will if they get some New York taxi drivers to man them.—Life.

Every act of the German nation since the war began and including its inception has been the most direct expression of a creed, a creed that has always produced just exactly the kind of action in which Germany indulges. This creed has just been published by the New York peace society in a pamphlet called "The Creed of the Huns," entirely in words quoted from Germans themselves, even the title. (It should be remembered that it was the Kaiser himself who first designated the German soldiers as "Huns" in his famous speech to the army sent to punish the Chinese at the time of the Boxer rebellion.) Prof. Charles H. Levermore has summed up these various utterances, coming from such men as Frederick the Great, von Clausewitz, William II, Moltke, Tietzsche, Lasson, Bernhardt, Bethmann-Hollweg, and the War-Book of the German general staff in the following sentences:

"Article Second.—The state possesses unlimited sovereignty, and is not subject to the moral restraints that should govern the conduct of individuals; therefore, in warfare, any barbarity which is thought to promote or insure the assumption of aggressive power is permissible and justifiable."

This doctrine, expressed perhaps even more epigrammatically by Prince von Bulow in a speech in the Reichstag, "For Germany right can never be a determining consideration," has been instilled into the German people from the kindergarten up. It is the creed of militarism, and military training in Germany is directed to the mind as much as to the legs. For four years now we have seen a great people the willing tools of such crimes and barbarities as the world has never known; the invasion and raping of Belgium, with eruelities piled upon cruelties; the invasion and wanton devastation of northern France; the introduction of the most hellish devices into warfare, such as gases and burning oils; the sinking of ships full of non-combatants—and women and children; manifestations of satanic cruelty over their fate (medals were struck over the drowning of women and children and distributed all over Germany); the practice of piracy upon the high seas; sinking ships of neutrals in all directions and all places so that no ship of any nation is safe anywhere in the world; the dropping of bombs on children playing on the beach; the deportation of civilians of Belgium and France as slaves into Germany; the old heathen nations used to make slaves of all whom they conquered; the spying upon everybody in all nations; white guests of nations secretly plotting to destroy them; attempting to stir up strife between friendly nations that Germany might profit by their quarrels; finally, the almost unbelievable, deliberate sinking of hospital ships; the practice of any kind of crime as a nation; the lack of any conscience; the inability any longer to distinguish between right and wrong; the indifference to the judgment of the whole world; the calm, purposeful descent to the level of the wild boar, goring his way to his prey. Every civilized man has been wondering and asking, How can any nation sink to the level to which Germany has sunk, do the unutterable things that with her have become a daily habit? The answer is written across the skies. Hold that creed as the Germans hold and you will do the things the Germans do.—From the Christian Work, New York.

Battlefields and Flowers

Abnity of Flowers for Fields Where, in the Dead are Buried

Apparently there is a strange relation existing between battlefields and wild flowers. Macaulay tells how, after the battle of Landen, in the Netherlands, in 1693, between the French army and the English army under King William III, where more than 20,000 men were left unburied on the field, the soil brought forth, following year, into millions upon millions of scarlet poppies, covering the entire battlefield as if a vast sheet of rich blood. An identically similar occurrence is reported to have taken place 120 years later in the same region, when in the summer of that year, following the victory of Waterloo, the entire battlefield was ablaze with scarlet poppies. The same springing up of scarlet poppies everywhere on the battlefields, some months after the battle, is taking place in France in the present war.

The French Farmers Saved The Day

The saving farmer is a national asset. Canadian progress to-day in all lines attests magnificently to the splendid qualities of thrift that have marked the farmers in all the provinces. The total returns from field crops and animal produce have been only possible because of the disposition to make use in an economical way of all the wonderful gifts of Providence in this good land of ours.

The same was abundantly true after 1870 in France when the frugal, thrifty of that fair land made it possible for the Republic to pay off that hated German war indemnity of two billion francs levied against them. The same spirit of national thrift built up France for the extreme test to-day—a test that is being tried by fire.

Thanks be, to the French heroism is proving true. The line is holding. The blood of the farmers is flowing equally as well through the veins of France's daughters of the soil and so the national strength bends but does not break.

Canada is reaping her harvest of increased returns and money is being made as never before. Our farmers are earning the gratitude of all in their splendid efforts at production. That they will carry into their savings an equal foresight in conserving their surpluses against the future days of darkness and lower prices will be equally praiseworthy. He is well advised who saves his extra dollar until he sees which way the winds of tomorrow will blow. Adversity blows a chill blast where there is no dollar in the savings.

Salvation Army to Raise $25,000 in S. Alberta

The wonderful and free service to the boys at the front, to their needy families at home, and especially to the children who have lost their mothers since their fathers went overseas, entitles the Salvation Army to the active support of those of us who are left at home. It is essential that this unselfish and efficient service should be continued without interruption, and this can only be done if the necessary funds are forthcoming. The needs are greater as the war continues and thousands of families have the Salvation Army to thank for very real help during these terrible times.

To provide for the needs of the Army the comparatively small sum of $25,000 has been asked for from Alberta, south of Red Deer. The business men of Calgary, realizing the splendid work that the Army is doing, have undertaken to secure this amount. A thorough canvass of that city is to be conducted this week, when it is hoped $20,000 will be secured. Residents outside of Calgary who appreciate the splendid work being done by the Salvation Army are being asked to provide $5,000 or one-fifth of the required amount. Of the $25,000 asked for, $10,000 is for their work overseas, $10,000 to help in providing accommodation for the children whose fathers are overseas, and who in many cases would be scattered and quite unprovided for, except for the unselfish aid given by this organization; the balance, $5,000, is to be used for their general charitable work, which has earned the kindest comments from those familiar with what the Salvation Army is doing.

May we urge everyone who appreciates the splendid services rendered by the Salvation Army and who wishes to help them help someone else in need, to send a contribution to provide the funds asked for! Cheques or orders should be made to the Treasurer, Red Shield Campaign Fund, and mailed to any of the following committee: P. L. Naismith, Manager Department of Natural Resources, C.P.R., Calgary, honorary president; R. J. Lydiatt, Manager Grand Theatre, Calgary, president; C. G. K. Nourse, Manager Canadian Bank of Commerce, treasurer; E. L. Richardson, Manager Calgary Industrial Exhibition and Secretary Alberta Live Stock Associations, secretary, Business Men's Committee, Calgary.

Wool Production

During the past two years the wool production of the Prairie Provinces has doubled, while the revenue from this source promises to be more than four times as large as it was in 1916. Two years ago the total weight of wool sold co-operatively by the three provinces amounted to somewhat less than a million and a half pounds. This year the total will be well over three million pounds. In 1916 farmers in Western Canada received an average of about 31c. a pound for their wool, or a total of approximately $470,000. This year they are expecting to obtain an average price of more than 60c., or a total of nearly two million dollars.

All three provinces have contributed to this remarkable advance. Manitoba's production has grown from about 160,000 pounds to over three million pounds; Saskatchewan from nearly 180,000 pounds to approximately 400,000 pounds; and Alberta's from somewhat over a million pounds to nearly, if not more than, three million pounds.

The progress made by the Prairie Provinces of Canada in this important industry is, of course, largely due to the great demand for wool at the present time, but it could hardly have been made had not the country been inherently suited for the raising of sheep. Experienced farmers who have had sheep in many climes say they have never known these animals to thrive better than they do in Western Canada. The favorable climate, an abundance of nutritious food and pure water are the chief factors contributing to the suitability of the country, and these, combined with the low cost of land, make the business of sheep raising in Western Canada as profitable as it is anywhere else in the world. That it is due for a greater development in the future is apparent, for not only are these farmers who already have sheep increasing their flocks whenever opportunity offers, but others are continually entering the business.

It is a business that promises large returns for many years to come to those engaged in it, for the need for wool will not abate with the close of the war. There is rather, in view of the depleted flocks in Europe, likely to be an increased demand that will take many years to satisfy.

Another Victory Loan

Alberta will soon again be in the midst of the Victory Loan campaign, which will be an annual affair as long as the war lasts. In the first Victory Loan of 1917, Gleichen and Alberta covered themselves with honor. The campaign was conducted by this province's ablest and most aggressive business men and, backed up by the support of an enthusiastic public, resulted in a sweeping success.

This year Alberta will be called on to do greater things. Our quota will be increased over last year and with previous valuable experience behind them the workers will be in a better position than ever to accomplish a result that will reflect credit on this province.

As is well known, it is absolutely necessary for Canada to find the money to finance its own war effort. No longer can our national issues be marketed in Great Britain or the United States. Neither is this to be deplored. For every Victory bond sold in Canada to Canadian people, by the amount of its face value is the trade balance against Canada reduced. The purchase and holding of Victory bonds by the Canadian people also encourages the habit of thrift and saving, a habit, it may be said, that the people of this country can afford to cultivate to a much greater extent than they have done in the past.

Organization for this year's campaign will probably be perfected earlier than it was in 1917; in all probability the issue will be offered for sale sooner. Definite announcement of all such matters will be made in due course, but in the meantime it will be as well for the people to prepare for it in advance and to prepare in such a way that the majority of them will be ready when the time comes to subscribe more promptly and more heavily than they did last year.

That Alberta grass-fed cattle are highly valued on the Chicago market is shown by the following extract from the report of one of the leading commission firms there:

"The best branded cattle so far this season were from Western Canada, selling at $17.50, otherwise $17.10 has been the limit, the long string going at $14.00 to $16.50.
Indications point to a high market for weighty western cattle right along."

Reports received in Calgary cattle circles indicate that the Alberta range is fast establishing a reputation in the Chicago live stock market as a producer of the finest and fattest grass-fed cattle on the continent, if indeed they are not of better quality than similarly fed cattle in any other part of the world.

The first automobile to be run with gas made from straw appeared on the streets of Saskatoon, Sask., last week. Professor R. D. Mc-Laurin, of the Saskatchewan University, who has been doing some important experimental work in determining the practicability of straw gas as a fuel for the Western Canada farmer, was responsible for the demonstration. The gas was carried in a large bag attached to the top of a McLaughlin motor-car.
Further experiments are to be made with tractors, and a bag will be attached to a tractor at the University farm in the near future. The straw gas plant will be on exhibition at the International Agricultural Show at New York this year.

Report No. 10 of the Canadian Record of Performance for Purebred Dairy Cattle constitutes a hand-book that dairymen can hardly do without. It contains the rules and regulations governing the records of performance; the standards for registration; the records of performance of all pure-bred dairy cattle in the country, convenient summaries of reports, exact details of the records achieved and the addresses of the owners; a record of the cows that have produced sufficient milk and fat to qualify but have failed to freshen within 15 months after the commencement of the test; a list of bulls open to registration and an index to owners. The whole forms a valuable and concise book of dairy records that can be had free on application to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Preparing the Soldiers Christmas Boxes Now

Contributions to the Gleichen soldiers overseas Christmas cheer fund continue to come in and over one hundred addresses have been sent in, but there should be over 300, so send in any you have to Mrs. W. H. James, Secretary, of Gleichen. An order has been given to R. W. Brown, of the Peoples Bakery, to make the cake, and the chocolate, cigarettes, etc., have been ordered from a wholesale firm. The ladies are now preparing the boxes and hope to ship them at an early date.

The Call has offered to devote at least one full page to a word of cheer to the boys at the front and place a copy in each box. No doubt the boys would like to read the names of their friends who have remembered them this Christmas and as the list already published will appear we will be glad to receive any corrections or omissions at once.
